

PUBLIC LEADER

FOURTH YEAR.

MAYSVILLE, KY., MONDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1895.

ONE CENT.

LARGEST IN THE CITY.

Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising "valued" free any more than a merchant can to give his customer free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade, and advertisements should be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

The Continued Calls

Upon The Leader for free notices have become so burdensome that we are forced to publish the following terms:

For Notices of Suppers,

excursions, fairs, or other public entertainments where a fee is charged, and for obituary notices, read the following rates. The Leader will charge FIVE CENTS A LINE, and hereafter this will be the invariable rule. This, however, is not the invariable rule. This, however, is not the invariable rule.

Does Not Include

notices of Lodge meetings or Church services, which must not exceed ten lines.

Avoidance of Disputes.

Misunderstandings are unpleasant. The rate for Business Notices in The Leader is 10 cents a line for the first insertion and 5 cents a line for subsequent insertions. A customer orders a five-line local notice in the paper. "I'll tell you when to take it out," he says to the publisher. But he forgets all about it. The notice runs for two months—three—the bill is $15.00. When he finds it out there is a "buck" and a controversy, followed probably by an icy feeling. Now, to obviate this trouble, we "for" notices will be accepted hereafter. Let us have a definite agreement at the outset and the termination will be pleasant all around.

All matter for publication must be handed in before 9 o'clock in the morning of each day.

If you have friends visiting you, or if you are going away on a trip, please drop us a note to that effect.

8100—Rescued—8100.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hark! Hark! Catarrh is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hark! Hark! Catarrh is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is hereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any man that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: J. C. CHERRY & CO., Toledo, O.

LOST HIS VOTE.

And Wesley Mines Has Now Taken to His Bed.

The Cincinnati Post's Vaneburg correspondent has turned himself loose again with the following "special" from that place:

"On election day Wesley Mines, a Republican at Kinney Precinct, lost his vote by placing the mark under the Prohibition device, thinking it was the eagle, not knowing that the Republican device had been changed to a log cabin."

"When he discovered his mistake after depositing his ballot he pleaded frantically to have the ballot back."

"When informed that this was impossible he began weeping hysterically. He went home and took to his bed, where he has laid meaning ever since. He refuses nourishment and it is thought that his mind is permanently impaired. His health has been very bad for a long time."

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

A Bad Blaze in a Very Bad Place, and the Damage Sustained.

At half past 6 this morning fire was discovered in the third floor of Klipp & Riggers' saddlery and harness factory, No. 3 West Second street.

It broke out in a pile of straw stored in a small room through which ran a brick flue, but this flue had not been used for several years.

The flames were confined to the third floor and roof of the building in which they originated, and the damage to the building from this source will not reach more than $500.

The water did most damage, and the stock of Messrs. Klipp & Riggers suffered to the extent of probably $3,000, on which there was insurance of $2,000.

P. J. Murphy the Jeweller, who occupied the West half of the building, was badly damaged by water, but even an approximate estimate of loss cannot yet be made.

Mr. Murphy has $5,000 insurance, which will probably cover his entire loss. The large drugstore of Dr. J. James Wood on the East was slightly damaged by water.

Smith & Co., the cigar manufacturers who adjoin Mr. Murphy on the West, have considerable water in their cellar, beyond which they escaped injury.

The building belongs to Mr. Charles H. White, and it is fully covered by insurance.

The personality of the late George W. Hughes, who was killed at Springfield on the 12th of October, has been appraised at $487.

Mr. William T. Berry, Principal of the Third District Public School, on Saturday entertained a number of his fellow-teachers at dinner.

Wanted—An intelligent American girl, 14 to 16 years, to learn light trade. Address, in own handwriting, "M.," Public Ledger office.

Saturday morning about 9 o'clock, as the Poplar Plank was coming to this city, and when a little ways West of the streetcar barn, one of the rear wheels flew off, causing the bus to stop, breaking all the glass on one side and considerably shaking up the driver. After some delay the wheel was replaced and the vehicle came to town and had the damage repaired.

Our Thanksgiving Page!

Beginning November 21st and ending November 27th—one entire week—the Fourth Page of THE LEADER will be made especially attractive for Advertisers. A novel design has been procured—something entirely new and "catchy"—and a limited number of cards will be inserted at a very low rate. Our canvasser will call on the representative houses during the week to solicit their favors.

The examining trial of Nick Fletcher and Miss Pearl Crouch, charged with being accessories to the murder of Doc Ellington, which was set for Thursday at Paris, has been postponed until Monday on account of the illness of one of the commonwealth witnesses.

The literature complained of consisted of Annie Besant's "Law of Population," which she accused circulated as a premium for his paper and also sold.

The trial attracted a large crowd, but those who expected a sensational trial were disappointed, for the proceedings were very commonplace.

The District Attorney contented himself with introducing the evidence of several persons who had received the book from Moore through the mails, and in order to prove that the book was obscene he had read a short extract from it.

Moore was not represented by counsel, and asked none of the witnesses against him any questions. He offered no evidence in his own behalf, and when asked whether he had any argument to make to the Jury he spoke for fifteen minutes. He admitted having sent the book through the mails, but contended that it was not obscene, within the meaning of that in the statutes.

"I have never been accused of being an immoral man, and it was not my purpose to be a party to any immorality," said he. He also claimed that he did not know of the existence of the statute under which he had been indicted, as that law had been changed in 1888, and the old law, which he had consulted, had not been the same as the present one. He pleaded for his release on the ground that he was not knowingly guilty.

Moore was released on $1,000 bond, and sentence deferred till February on condition to not repeat his offense.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neurasthenia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant traveler, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5. If it could not be had for less, for sale at 50 cents per bottle by J. James Wood, Druggist.

CHARLIE MOORE GUILTY.

He Is Released, However, and Sentence Deferred Till February.

Charles Chilton Moore, Editor of The Bluegrass Blade of Lexington, was tried in the United States District Court at Louisville on an indictment charging him in thirteen counts with the use of the mails for circulating obscene, lewd and lascivious literature.

The literature complained of consisted of Annie Besant's "Law of Population," which she accused circulated as a premium for his paper and also sold.

The trial attracted a large crowd, but those who expected a sensational trial were disappointed, for the proceedings were very commonplace.

STEEL VESSELS.

They Require More Repairs Than the Wooden Ones.

Careful Supervision Must Be Exercised and Remedies Applied

In Order That the Efficiency of the Ship May Be Maintained—A Million and a Half Dollars Will Be Required for This Purpose in the Coming Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The first ship of the new navy was in the water over nine years ago, and according to Chief Constructor Hiebhorn the demands for ordinary repairs on the earlier vessels for the maintenance of their equipment in a proper state of efficiency are year by year becoming more serious, and Congress must therefore make appropriations for this purpose. Com. Hiebhorn, in his annual report, declares that modern steel ships, with their extreme subdivision, and elaborate systems of ventilation, drainage and mechanical auxiliaries of all kinds, require much greater care, both in construction and in the maintenance of them, than the former case with the old wooden ships; neglect is followed by much more serious and far-reaching deterioration and it is in the opinion of the chief constructor that the most careful supervision should be exercised at all times and remedies applied in order that the efficiency of the vessels as a fighting force may be properly maintained.

For several years past the construction bureau has been compelled to economize nearly to the point of being limited by a repair appropriation of less than three per cent. of the original cost of vessels, while in the British navy the figure varies from four to nine per cent.; the lower figure applying to heavier armored vessels. Chief Constructor Hiebhorn insists that a million and a half dollars are needed for this year, where only $900,000 was secured from Congress for the current year. A significant feature of Chief Hiebhorn's report is that he officially recommended the construction of only two new vessels to be authorized by Congress at the next session instead of the three vessels to our force of heavy battle ships which was unofficially suggested by his paper read before the naval architects in New York three days ago as being promptly needed by the navy.

The vessels he recommends are two small coal sailing vessels of 1,000 tons displacement to cost only $350,000 each. Those, if authorized by Congress, will be the first two vessels without steam power that have been placed in the naval service for many years. No argument regarding these recommendations is submitted by Chief Constructor Hiebhorn.

Com. Hiebhorn devotes considerable space to pointing out the necessity for greatly increasing the number of dry docks at the navy yards, the efficiency of our cranes being seriously hampered by the difficulties encountered in cleaning their submerged portions. He recommends new dry docks at Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, Mare Island, Cal., and Norfolk, Va.

Until the indefinite time in the future when the big dry docks at New York, Puget Sound and San Francisco are available for deep draught vessels, the new battleships must remain undocked. Chief Engineer Melville and Chief Constructor Hiebhorn both estimate that $1,859,869 must be provided for disbursement next year on account of the vessels authorized by the last Congress, which, however, no appropriations were made. For repairs on the Chicago $600,000 is required and for the Hartford $750,000. Chief Constructor Hiebhorn renews with emphasis the request frequently made to Congress the experimental model to cost about $300,000, which it is proposed to build as a model of ships before the vessels themselves are built.

LYNCHED.

A Negro Prisoner Taken From an Officer and Hanged.

SAYANNAH, Ga., Nov. 11.—A morning news special from Georgia City, Ga., says: Lewis Jefferson, the Negro who last Tuesday night attempted a criminal assault upon the person of little Miss Wilson Probber, has been hanged by a determined posse. While he was being taken Saturday afternoon before the magistrate at Argyle for a criminal trial, the officer, in going through a thicket near town, he suddenly attacked from behind by parties unknown; was overpowered and the culprit taken off, hanged andiddled with bullets.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 11.—Five train loads of Chicagoans came in Sunday to attend the exercises on Illinois and Chicago day at the Georgia Exposition. The first city outside of Georgia to take a lively interest in the exposition. When Congress was asked to make an appropriation for a government display in Atlanta, the Illinois delegation with one exception, stood nobly by the south.

It is stated that both engines and the passenger cars were killed. A New Orleans train and a freight train ran into each other four miles south of Franklin, and the lives of a person were lost.

THE VOICE OF NARRATION.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 11.—Advices received Sunday night from Jamaica state that much distress exists in St. Elizabeth's for a government display on the verge of starvation, several having already died from that cause. # FOG.

The Magnificent Steamer Puritan Goes on a Rock.

The Vessel Had One Hundred and Fifty Passengers Aboard.

Men and Women Rashed From Their Berths, But, on Being Assured, No Panic Ensued—The Passengers Were Not Hurt—Aid on the Way.

LONDON, Ct. Nov. 11.—Capt. Miner, of the Puritan, which vessel, which vessel arrived at 4 o'clock Saturday morning, reported a steamer ashore on Great Gulf Island, blowing four whistles as signals of distress. The fog was as dense as ice then, and Capt. Miner could not make out the vessel, but was sure that it was the Puritan, of the Fall River line, as that boat went just ahead of the Worcester Friday night from New York. At 6 o'clock Saturday morning a boat from the Puritan came ashore with the first officer of the Puritan and eight of her crew, coming to get assistance to haul the vessel off and take the passengers ashore. The Puritan has 150 passengers aboard. The steamer went on Great Gulf Island in the thick fog at 3 o'clock Saturday morning, going at anchor. She struck and was driven from stern to stern. Few passengers were starting at the time, but just after she struck the vessel was filled with passengers, men and women. They were reasonably calm when assured that there was no danger and that the vessel would soon be at anchor. For many steamers were passing close to the vicinity of where the Puritan lay and they would come to or send signals. Big Gulf is a small island from New London and from the latter port assistance was sent. As soon as the Puritan's boat arrived her captain, Thomas Scott, was notified and he sent a tug and a barge to the Puritan to immediately take off her passengers who will be brought here and forwarded to their destinations—Fall River and Boston.

The first officer of the Puritan said that the boat went hard upon the rock which she struck, her bowsprit breaking her outer skin, and that the water poured in between the outer and inner skins. The latter is intact, so that the water is kept out of the steamer. The Puritan lies easy, though there is a fierce sea on. Her officers declare that the whistle on Great Gulf was short, and the vessel would have been warned of her danger, and would not have struck. The whistle did not, they declare, make a sound until a few minutes before the first officer and eight of the crew started for their harbor in the Puritan's yawl.

At noon Sunday there was no change in the condition of the Fall River steamer Puritan, and work had been stopped until Monday.

USE OF THE KOLA-NUT.

European Nations Adding It to Their Army Supplies.

Its Force-Promoting and Life-Preserving Properties Have Been Introduced into the United States—Product of the Dark Continent.

Besides Gordon, Emin Pasha and the Mahabbe were the promoters of the "Dark Continent" has contributed to the progress of humanity the kola-nut. Within a few years, says the New York Herald, it has passed from the narrow function of deleterious barbaric aborigines into an extensive service of civilized man.

Kaiser Wilhelm the Younger, ever alert to discover additional means of preserving the peace of Europe, inferred from the exhaustive reports of laborers, geomancers, physiologists and therapists that it would prodigiously increase the fighting capacity of his soldiers, and immediately ordered it to be stored in his pacific armament. The French republic determined that its brother of Germany should not beat it an inch to the goal of peace, promptly placed the kola-nut in the commissariat of its military establishment. Theroprogynous rivalry stimulated Austria and Italy to do likewise; whereupon the contagion of the philanthropic impulse overcame Russia. Mountain climbers were as quick as peace preservers to recognize the battle-sustaining properties of kola, and nearly all the Alpine clubs in Europe have made it a part of their dietetic equipment. And finally its force-promoting and life-saving qualities have won for it secure admission to the medical pharmacopoeia both abroad and in this country. It is, however, much less known and used here than there.

A marvelous property of endowing its user with power to endure severe and prolonged physical exertion, without tiring and without feeling fatigue, is the particular virtue which has attracted attention to kola. Travelers' tales to this effect, at first regarded to the realm of the fabulous, were finally followed and confirmed by scientific investigation. Among the latest European investigators are Prof. Dr. Hecker, of Munich, and Dr. Leon Ernst Monnet, and from their authoritative reports the material of the present article is mainly derived.

Prof. Hecker tells us that the negroes in tropical Africa walk over forty miles a day with nothing to eat but one fresh kola nut, and that he has accompanied a caravan of four upon a day of dry kola. He relates the experience of two army officers who, while ascending the nearly nine thousand feet of Mount Camero, climbed northward to a quantity of kola representing about two grains of caffeine. They rested twenty minutes, climbed twelve hours and returned to camp on top with no sense of fatigue and with apparently no diminution of muscular power. Many other officers and private soldiers, Dr. Hecker says, have tested with like results the potency of kola. He cites the experience of several infantry officers who, as an insignificant quantity, were not tired after walking in the month of July forty miles in fifteen and a half hours.

At his suggestion the French Alpine troops, in 1894, afterwards received a vote of thanks to the professor, declaring that it had surprisingly kept them in breath and strength.

But this striking attribute by no means exhausts the vitality of kola. The investigators, convinced that in such an astonishing product lay beneficial agencies as yet unrevealed, promptly set to studying its physiological action upon the human system and its therapeutic possibilities. Discoveries were soon announced. Kola not only stimulates the nervous system, strengthening and at the same time regulating its pulsations. "In the latest stages of cardiac affection," declared Dr. Dujardin-Rue, "kola sometimes works resurrections." It revived the pulse, increasing its fullness and decreasing its rapidity. It exerted a most beneficial effect on the nervous system and for all derangements thereof was an efficacious remedy; and probably through this same action it retarded the progress of the disease. It was a powerful tonic for employment in anemia and chronic debility, while in convalescence from severe fevers it was of great service in restoring the system to its normal condition. It was a specific for inebriation. This reputation came from Zululand, where the natives found it a godsend after contact with the British charging camp.

The Wing Area of Flying Animals.

A French naturalist has shown that the wing area of flying animals varies from about forty-nine square feet per pound of weight in the eagle and five square feet per pound in the bee. The square foot per pound of weight in the Australian crane, which weighs twenty-one pounds and yet flies well. If we were to adopt the last or smallest proportion, a man weighing one hundred and sixty-eight pounds would require a pair of wings each of four feet long by three feet broad, or the area of an ordinary room door, to carry him, without taking into account the weight of the wings themselves.

It is not, however, a very simple matter to adopt the last or smallest proportion, a man weighing one hundred and sixty-eight pounds would require a pair of wings each of four feet long by three feet broad, or the area of an ordinary room door, to carry him, without taking into account the weight of the wings themselves.
